

HEALTH AND POPULATION: PERSPECTIVES AND ISSUES

CALL FOR PAPERS

Health and Population: Perspectives and Issues (HPPI) invites researchers, scholars and authors to submit their original and extended research for publication in this peer reviewed research Journal published by the National Institute of Health & Family Welfare , New Delhi, India.

Health and Population: Perspectives and Issues (HPPI) having ISSN-0253-6803 is a peer reviewed Journal dedicated to publishing papers of scientific and educational interest based on primary or secondary data as well as review articles in the areas of Health, Family Welfare, and Population. The scope of the Journal covers original articles on various dimensions of health-physical, mental, social and spiritual; and also population concerns, health services administration, family planning, demography, social and behavioral sciences, communication, bio-medical sciences in family planning and allied subjects with emphasis on hospital administration and community health management. Manuscripts are critically reviewed by experts in the relevant field. Authors are given the benefit of comments, whenever necessary. Acceptance of the paper for publication is based on the originality of the research work or ideas projected, and clarity of presentation. Published papers represent the opinion of the authors and do not reflect the views or the policy of the Institute. Materials (tables, figures, and content) published in HPPI can be reproduced with due acknowledgment.

Papers for the regular issues of the Journal can be submitted, round the year, electronically to the editor at editor@nihfw.org.

For Theme Based Special Issues, time bound Special Call for Papers will be announced and the same will be applicable for that specific issue only. There is no fees for submission of articles.
